December 26, 1892. Editor. CROSBY S. NOYES. THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent circulation in Washington three times larger than that of any other paper in the city. As a local NEWS paper and Advertising Medium it has no competitor.

On the night of the meeting of the general inaugural committee THE STAR said that th success of the inauguration, so far as the credit of Washington was concerned, would depend upon the extent to which those who happened to find themselves intrusted with the duty of conducting the customary ceremonies recognized the fact that this city-and not they themselves or the local representatives of any severe weather positical party or of any particular faction of a political party - would be the host of the occasion. After much factional and personal pulling and hauling, jealousy, backbiting and open bickering, it has come to pass that the decision of the extent to which Washington shall be the host at its inauguration of a new President resus with Col. James G. Berret, who is to appoint the executive committee which will take active charge of the inaugural ceremonies. The present prospect is that this committee will be made fairly representative of Washington and that the appointments upon it will not be parceled out among jealous and contending political factions in the evidently hopeless task of smoothing the differences be tween them. If the wise step is now taken of discarding entirely the plan of action which is based upon the assumption that the inauguration must be so conducted as either to reconcile local political factions or to exalt or to crush a local political faction, and if, ignoring the squabbles which have retarded inaugural arrangements and ignoring political and factional considerations altogether, the executive committee is made broadly representative of Washington, placing conspicuously at the front, of course, in greeting a presidential guest those among the representative citizens who will as democrats be most congental to a democratic President, all will yet be well. The Stan is not ready to withdraw its prediction that the next inauguration will be the grandest, most impressive, and most creditable to Washington as an entertainer which has ever taken

Representative Hopkins of Pennsylvania ha started out to educate Congress. Mr. Hopkins has only been in the national legislature since the "Fifty-first" commenced to be, but in the brief period which has elapsed since that opening day he has repeatedly had impressed upon him the necessity for something which would render nugatory the ignorance of those who journey directly from the haunts of the uneducated to a seat in the Senate or House. A bureau of congres sional service is the panaces proposed by Mr. Hopkins; a bureau which is to render to members of Congress prompt and accurate information touching such matters as may be within its duties. The arrangement, if it becomes law, will be an admirable one. Clerks of the bureau can meet the legislators as they arrive, conduct them to hotels or boarding houses and there explain to them the differences between candles and illuminating gas. They may also let fall a few instructive remarks on knives and forks as table ware and call attention to those harsh regulations of civilized society shall remove their boots before retiring to rest in the early morning. Then the bureau could prepare and print hand books from which the ongressional novice might secure valuable information as to the hours when dress suits may have decided on the goods. or may not be worn; as to the cut of overcoats and the relative bues of scarfs and gloves. A monthly fashion plate, properly colored, would add materially to the popularity of the hand It may be that Mr. Hopkins does not intend to have the bureau up such an extensive task at the outset. Perhaps he does not mean to go any further just now than the appointment of NEW "ALUMINUM" WARE clerks who will notify members when to take their feet off their desks. But the scheme is a good one and should be pressed vigorously to success. ---

A delegation of national commissioners of the world's fair will soon be here in the interest of an additional appropriation which the commission deems necessary. Of course there will be more or less opposition to any argument the delegation may make, but unless the money is to be foolishly expended none of the so-called economical ideas should prevail. The United States has committed itself to the exposition and Congress cannot disregard the neces sities, if there are any. Chicago will be glorified by the success of the great fair, but Congressmen who are not Chicagoans should smother local prejudice and remember that the nation's responsibility in the matter outweight all other considerations. ----

The brightest page in the local history of yesterday is that which is devoted to children Go To and their happiness. Perhaps there were a few hungry boys and girls in Washington, but that unfortunate condition was due entirely to the fact that incarnated benevolence was ignorant of their whereabouts. Thousands of peopleprincipally little ones-put in several of the happiest hours of their lives seeking and finding tiny tots whose Christmas would have been cheerless but for the active liberality of their cheerless but for the active liberality of their dresses for many years), for only $350?

Personal friends! Attention!! Why pay $450 for a PIANO when you can buy the standard VOSE (which has stood the test for many years), for only $350?

NEW YEAR IS COMING. more fortunate fellow beings.

It is infinitely better that [the Guion Steamship Company go out of business as it practically has than that it continue to convey to these shores such undestrable specimens of unfortunate humanity as have crowded the steerages for several years past. Of course it is unfortunate that a big business concern should be compelled to transfer its activities to other waters than those which wash American shores but the resultant loss is not worthy of mention when compared with the great gain consequent upon restricted immigration.

Those populous portions of Baltimore known "Duncan's Chance" and "Huckleberry Forest" are to be brought under litigation on a claim that antedates the Declaration of Independence. Washington has a similar specter in the Blodgett claim, which has been arising from time to time. Baltimore's ghost, being younger in its career of earth walking, may excel the Washington shade in the vigor of its manifestations, but it has the outward indications of belonging to the same family of apparitions.

What a great thing will be that electric railway connecting Baltimore with this city. What an educating force. Cheaply and rapidly the unlearned Baltimorean may come to the fount-ain of literature and art and drink his fill; may feast on the wisdom and statesmanship of the land and behold the beauties of a city which is more excellent in everything that makes a city desirable than any other populous center on this continent.

The most economical youth in the whole realm of gilded society resides in St. Louis. He danced in the minuet at that big ball given by the Daughters of the Confederacy and he has rendered to the management a bill for five dollars, which sum he expended for the pair of Octam's Drug Stores, 1211 Pa. ave. and Cram's Drug Stores, cor. 17th and it sts. n.w. pads that filled out the calves of his silken hose. He will got his five dollars, but the much-disturbed "daughters" think the price was a trifle steep for imitation veal.

The principal argument in favor of keeping the world's fair open on Sunday is that it will prevent people from indulging in more harmful forms of amusement. The idea of moral vaccination should develop a good deal of interesting philosophic thought.
